Nutritious Smoothie

Warnings:

- Your doctor and dietitian can help you estimate the amount of calories and protein you will need in the healing process, and any dietary restrictions you should follow.
- Check with your doctor about your sugar/carbohydrate intake if you are diabetic. Bananas and other fruits are loaded with natural sugars.
- Check with your doctor if you are on a medication that restricts your intake of leafy greens (i.e., Coumadin/Warfarin).
- Your Speech-Language Pathologist can help advise you on how thick the smoothie should be to ensure safe swallowing.

1. Base ingredients:

   To thicken (choose one or all of these depending on your desired thickness):
   - 1/2 Banana (to make this easy, when bananas start getting too brown, chop them in chunks and put them in freezer in a freezer bag)
   - 1/2 of an avocado
   - 1 cup of plain yogurt with NO sugar added (Greek yogurt for more protein)

   Add a Liquid (choose what type of smoothie you want – milk-based or juice-based):
   - 1 cup of a dairy or non-dairy milk depending on your tolerance (non-dairy ideas: almond, rice, coconut, or hemp milk)
   - or 1 cup of juice (a natural juice “nectar,” like mango nectar, will make the drink thicker too).
   - Avoid liquids that have added sugars. Check for “no sugar added.”

2. Add More Protein of your choice:
   - Add 1 cup of Ensure, Boost, or other supplement recommended by your physician and/or dietitian.
- Scoop of Protein powder (i.e., brown rice protein, hemp protein, or other – follow serving size on container)
- Silken tofu
- Ice cream

3. Add optional powders (one or all depending on dietary needs):
   - Fiber powder of your choice (follow serving size on container)
   - Chia seeds (teaspoon of ground chia seeds)
   - Ground flax seeds or flax seed oil
   - Wheat Grass powder (follow serving size)

3. Add fruit of your choice to taste:
   - Handful of fresh or frozen berries
   - Handful of fresh or frozen chunks of mango
   - Peeled peaches
   - Melons
   - Peeled apple slices

4. Greens:
   Pre-chopped greens (kale, turnip greens, beat greens, or spinach) can be kept in the freezer to add one handful to your smoothie. Frozen greens blend up easily in a blender. It is a great way to hide extra nutrition in your smoothie. When kale is fully blended into your smoothie, you cannot taste it!

5. Add a little Pizazz!
   - Pinch of grated ginger (might go well with your mangos or peaches)
   - Radishes: you may need an actual Juicer (not just a blender), then you could liquify sliced radishes, carrots, beets for even more vegetables.

Blend on high with pulse setting first, then leave on high for at least a minute, or until fully blended. May need to carefully push down ingredients from the side of the blender with a rubber spatula.
